WHAT IS APA

Discover below all you need to know about APA and how this arrangement works.

Diamantides Luxury Yachting acknowledges that during your trip a variety of expenses might occur, thus we offer you the option of APA. APA stands for Advanced Provisioning Allowance and is a lump sum that enables you to cover all your expenses during your yacht charter. Therefore, when you fancy additional food and alcohol during your trip or Internet connection while on board, APA is the best option for you.

What does your APA cover and how is it calculated?

APA covers all charter costs aside of the base charter fee. This could be used for special requests or daily running costs such as food & alcohol, fuel, dockage fees, communications, etc. It is calculated as a percentage of your charter fee which is usually 30 – 35%.

Where and when do you need to pay it?

APA is due roughly one month before you set sail, at the same time as your final charter payment and is made directly to the captain but your charter broker will also provide all bank details needed in advance.

What happens if the APA doesn't cover all expenses?

In case your expenses exceed the initial payment you can pop up the APA in cash while you are on board. The captain will keep you informed during the trip and in case there are any outstanding costs you will have to settle these before you disembark. In the opposite case, when you do not use the full APA and some credit remains on the account at the end of the charter, the captain will issue a refund which you will receive before you disembark.

Do not hesitate to contact our team for additional information.
